JUDY COOK House Concert; Friday, September 10th; 8pm

Judy Cook presents splendid unaccompanied ballads and songs from a huge and varied Anglo/American repertoire. Powerful variants of British ballads dovetail effortlessly with American narratives and sprinklings of whimsical pieces and spiritual anthems. Her presentation and delivery are a great example to any singer, and combine with her joy of singing to delight all listeners. Judy began performing professionally in the early 1990s. Her first recording of unaccompanied traditional songs and ballads, If You Sing Songs, was released in 1998, the same year as her first singing tours. This was followed two years later by Far From the Lowlands. She has quickly come to be well respected as a singer and propagator of the old songs, on both sides of the Atlantic.

These wonderful performers from Scotland will present a workshop “Ballads of the Supernatural and ways in which they are significant as the narrative heart of the Scots singing tradition”. In addition to being fine and expressive singers, Alison plays banjo and Geordie plays guitar.

Born in Renfrewshire, Scotland of Ayrshire/Irish stock, Alison’s family was highly musical. She lived in Cornwall and then for many years in Yorkshire, where exploring the folk cultures of these locales helped sharpen and define her Scottish identity. Her active work in the traditional and related arts has been extensive, innovative and significant, embracing radio and television broadcasting, theatre, publishing, numerous recordings, field collecting and community arts.

A Glaswegian of Highland and Irish descent, Geordie’s lifetime involvement in song, ballad and poetry is reflected in his singing, collecting and songwriting. His early years as a radio and television technician and later as a Modern Studies teacher, coupled with his passion for the outdoors have fueled and complemented his central interest in folk music. He has an extensive repertoire and has sung at clubs and festivals in most corners of Britain and Ireland and more recently in the USA. KEN SEVITSKY recently went on a ten-day trip to London and Edinburgh with his brother and mother to celebrate their mother’s 80th birthday. They mainly went sightseeing and saw the beautiful Scottish highlands. Also, they heard some Scottish and Celtic music on the highlands tour. The trip was really great. Happy birthday MRS. SEVITSKY!

SHEILA EWALL spent the fourth of July at a folk dance weekend led by Sasha Gottlieb at the Fallsview Hotel in Ellenville, NY and then spent additional time at the nearby Nevele Grande West Hotel. Her niece, MARNI SCHLESINGER, worked as a para-legal for a law firm in Bayside, Queens and is now an intern at the Brooklyn District Attorney’s office.

In July, HARVEY CORT and I were part of an Elder-hostel group that attended a three-week French language immersion course at the University of Quebec at Trois Rivieres. It was a wonderful experience.
