Fall Weekend - Oct. 21-23, 2005

Don’t Miss This Weekend!

This year’s fall weekend promises to be one of the best ever. Bring your families, bring your friends, bring instruments and voices. See flyer & registration coupon in centerfold.

This is our first visit to Kutz Camp, in Warwick, NY, with lots of rooms and spaces for workshops and informal music. Not only were we able to lower the prices, it’s nearby (just 50 miles from NYC) on the NY-NJ border and easily reached by car or NJ public transit bus #196 (4 express busses leave Port Authority on Friday evening).

The weekends offer an unequaled opportunity to interact with other music-lovers through formal workshops, participatory workshops, and lots of informal music making as shown in these pictures from last Spring. Get to know Finest Kind (Ian Robb, Shelley Posen, & Anne Downey); three people who infuse their great harmony singing with their obvious love for the music. Shelley’s recent CD, Manna, is “a tzimmes of Shelley originals, funny and sad, about Jewish food, family, and festivals. You’ll laugh, you’ll cry, you’ll run to the fridge.” Mary Jones is a lively caller of English Dances. Her happy spirit will encourage even the least confident to trip the light fantastic.

Sign up now!
The lower prices are in effect until October 10!

English and Scottish Harmony. Fri, Sept. 30th; 8 pm 😊

Moira Craig, Sarah Morgan and Carolyn Robson have been quite genuinely stunning the world of traditional song in Britain with the highest quality material, superb singing, depth of knowledge, and a warm and winning way with the audience. This is their first trip to the US; it is an evening not to be missed. Moira is from Scotland, Sarah from the South of England, and Carolyn from Northumberland. Co-sponsored with the Polytechnic University Office of Student Development; at Polytechnic University, Dibner Auditorium. Dibner Auditorium is at Metrotech Center in Downtown Brooklyn, a short ride from Manhattan, accessible on A, C, F (Jay St.), N, M, R (Lawrence St.), 2, 3, 4, 5 (Borough Hall) trains. Metrotech Commons is across Jay St. from the back of the Marriott, enter the commons from Jay St. Dibner Library is on the left, a rather modern university building.

By car: Brooklyn-Queens Expressway to Tillary Street, park along Tillary or Flatbush Ave. after 7:00 (tow-away before 7:00). Enter Metrotech Commons from Flatbush Avenue, Dibner Library is on the right, a relatively modern university building.

FREE to NYPFMC members and Polytech Students and staff; $18 general public; $15 CD*NY members; $10 seniors and full-time students; $6 children under 12. Information: 212-957-8386.

Office Space Needed

The Club continues to look for more appropriate office space. We need space for a desk (with our computer and phone), file cabinet and 2 storage cabinets in a place that is accessible evenings, nights and weekends so our volunteers can get there after their “day” jobs. We also need access to an area that we can use 2 evenings a month for our board meetings (20 people) and our newsletter mailings. We’re looking for a Manhattan location with no cats; something shared with another nonprofit might be ideal. This is a continuing search; if you have any ideas, contact Don Wade, 1-718-426-8555 or e-mail <WadeD@ncc.edu>.

Membership Rates Increase

The club board has voted to increase membership rates, effective with all memberships expiring after 30 September 2005.

We regret the necessity, brought about by a combination of falling membership numbers and the increase in costs of printing, office space, etc., plus the anticipated increase in postage costs. The new rates are listed on the back cover.

Perspicacious members will note that, whenever your membership expires, you can save a few bucks by renewing using the coupon from last month’s newsletter before the 30 September rate change.

Hedy West —A Personal Recollection

Hedy West passed away a few weeks ago; she was a friend, an utterly brilliant musician, and a deep and usually very private person. In what follows I will not attempt any sort of full biography, but will instead attempt a personal recollection.

I first heard Hedy on a Folk Legacy recording probably in the later 1960s. Nice songs, I thought (I didn't know a whole lot about traditional singing at the time), good banjo ... but I took little notice. Some time in the early 1970s NY Pinewoods had Hedy as a performer at one of our folk music weekends. Seeing her in person was a whole different matter. Several things struck me. She seemed rather withdrawn, not unfriendly at all, but certainly with little concern for any particular image, not "on stage" in any sense. But the music ... oh my ... I had never heard such intensity of ballad singing. And the banjo and guitar playing simply made my hair stand on end - still does, just imagining it. She did a workshop on the traditional ballads from her family and played tapes of her grandma singing. Here was a totally genuine love of the tradition with no apology and with no self-aggrandizement.

Janis, my girlfriend at that time, was also blown away, and said how incredible it would be to take banjo lessons from Hedy. Janis was not much more than a beginner so she did not think Hedy would consider it, but I said "never hurts to ask". I approached Hedy, who seemed delighted - almost flattered. Hedy lived in Stony Brook, NY, where she was studying composition in the graduate program. Every two weeks or so we would get in the car, and I would drive Janis out for a lesson. We would always stay around afterwards. Hedy would offer tea and fruit or cookies, and we would talk. That is where I began to know her as a person.

She was actually quite shy, and much more involved with ultra-modern composed music than with traditional music at the time. She certainly seemed to have no interest in the process of getting gigs with clubs or festivals. We went once to a concert of her works, probably given as a finale to her master's degree. I confess I thought she was far better as a banjo player and singer, but she really did not feel that the "folkie" world had much interest in her and her music, and thus I think was especially delighted when Janis wanted to study with her. She had received a lot of criticism for not being "traditional", even for betraying her tradition, because her style was, in the technical sense, nothing like other source musicians. Her banjo playing was utterly idiosyncratic and totally unique. She would switch from frailing to picking and back in the same song, play the tune in octaves, in a way I have never heard anyone else even approximate. One might say that she was modernizing the tradition. She made no attempt to imitate the people she learned songs from and made no apology. But what made it special for me was that everything she did was totally supportive of the song! None of it came across as an attempt to display technique, though she had that in superabundance. What came across was a song, a story, with such intensity as to leave the listener absolutely limp. I would find my jaw hanging open at the end.

Later, she spent some years in East Germany, learned German and sang a good number of (very!) left-wing political songs in German. She acquired the Sprechstimme style, which fits material from Brecht very well, but it slipped more and more into the Appalachian songs. Her word timing became wildly exciting, I think partially from her experience with the German material, but it detracted not one wit from the intensity of the song and story. I loved that part. It was totally Hedy and not at all traditional in any technical sense. What did bother me was that the Sprechstimme would sometimes obscure the tune. When I learned her stunning version of Fair Annie from the tape of a terrific concert she did for us at the South Street Seaport. I found that in every verse she had essentially spoken the third line and I had to guess at the tune. Years later she did a wonderful concert for us at the Bloomingdale Music School in Manhattan, and afterwards I asked her what was the actual third line of tune to Fair Annie. I wasn't too far off, so I have October brings us colorful fall leaves, a briskness in the air, and a reminder to get ready for the coming winter. One way is to enjoy the music. We have workshops—Cajun music and Balkan Singing; concerts—Moira Craig, Carolyn Robson, and Sara Morgan (actually in September), and the Sea Music concert; and chances to make our own music at the Folk Open Sing, the Sacred Harp and the Gospel and Sacred Harp Singing, the Riverdale Sing, The Sunnyside Song Circle, the Chantey Sing, and the Halloween Singing Party.

Best of all, our Fall Weekend still has room. It’s a wonderful new space for us. Come and join us—the first page has pictures from the Spring Weekend (another new place for us, where a good time was had by all). Enjoy the colors of fall and try out Kutz Camp.

We will also have the Tom Gibney Memorial concert, a time to remember Tom, his quiet cheerful manner and the music he loved so much. On another sad note, Hedy West passed away this summer. We were so glad to have the opportunity to see her at the Eisteddfod last summer. We will miss her.

A reminder—the November/December issue is a double issue. Don’t forget to send us any articles and ads that you want to run for December as well as November, and save the issue for reference through December.

One final note—our hearts go out to those who suffered from Hurricane Katrina. Just as happened for September 11, music helps us to heal and in more concrete ways to raise funds and get help for the people who lost their homes and much more. Many musicians were among them—especially in our New Orleans.

Thank you to the volunteers who help to put out the newsletter each month and ensure that you get the word about what’s going on in the club and at events throughout the city. They could always use more help. For the September newsletter thank you to Brenda Pena, Marcus Tieman, and Don Wade who also delivered the pages from the printer. Won’t you join us on Wednesday, Oct. 26, and help mail out the November/December newsletter? (See p.4).

stayed with my somewhat invented tune.

When her daughter was seriously studying violin, Hedy turned to managing what she thought was going to be a major concert career for her. Hedy herself virtually never performed. She was also beginning her long fight with cancer. I had wanted so much to bring her to Pinewoods Camp, where people could spend a week with her, not only hearing her music but also sharing all of the immense background of her tradition. It was not to be. However, we did manage to bring her to the Eisteddfod festival in New York in 2004, and we hoped that she would be at Pinewoods Camp in 2005. I believe the Eisteddfod was her last performance.

I had no idea her death was imminent. In the two or three months preceding, we got into an extended email dialogue about a bunch of things. Some painful experiences with some people in the early years of her performing career; a lot on our families’ different experiences with progressive politics; the differences between Jews and Southern Baptists.

A couple of years ago Peggy Seeger was doing a workshop for us on ballads, and the subject of Hedy came up. I said, "Hedy is one of the very few people I would drive 100 miles to see." Peggy answered, "So would I." It is no longer possible. How terribly, terribly sad, what a staggering loss. She was utterly, totally unique, and hearing her was an experience I can’t imagine anyone ever forgetting.

-Jerry Epstein
BARBARA MEHLMAN sends news of the Mehlman family. She writes:

ALISON MEHLMAN was legally married to ANNE FORTIER in Massachusetts by a rabbi last August. They have two daughters, ISABEL (4) and OLIVIA (2), both carried by Anne. The children received their Hebrew names during a ceremony on August 7th. Both HARVEY BINDER and I went to the ceremony. They are wonderfully happy. Alison is a policy analyst for the HIV/AIDS bureau of the Massachusetts Department of Health and Anne is deputy dean for the University of Massachusetts' Amherst School of Continuing Education. MELISSA MEHLMAN, who has a son, JACK (5), gave birth to DORA GRACE on July 9th. Jack has already shown himself to be musically gifted and will be getting musical training at the Solomon Schechter School in Northampton, Massachusetts, where he has just started kindergarten. His instrument of choice seems to be the drums. I am a school librarian at the Campus Magnet High School in south Queens. It used to be the old Andrew Jackson High School. I also write a weekly theater review column which you can find at poughkeepsiejournal.com. It appears in three other newspapers, all in Connecticut. Other writings can be found in the online newsletter, Daily Health News, (no byline) and if things go as planned, I will soon start writing a series of children's books on how to be a good babysitter. On the tech front, I recently bought a new iMac G5, which I adore, and received training from the NYCBOE on a brand new HP Tablet which is a combination laptop and slate. It's a fabulous machine with versatile software that will allow me to do awesome lessons with my students. Everyone is healthy and happy and hope to see a lot of you at the fall weekend.

Congratulations and best wishes to Melissa, Alison and Anne and welcome to the world, Dora Grace.

STEPHANIE P. LEDGIN, has released her second book within a year: From Every Stage: Images of America's Roots Music, a collection of 200 photographs and several rare, previously unpublished interviews with key music personalities including Vassar Clements, Bill Monroe and others. A photo exhibit featuring 12 panels from the book opened September 9th at Nashville's Country Music Hall of Fame and runs through November 30th. Her first book, Homegrown Music: Discovering Bluegrass, was nominated earlier this year for the Belmont Country Music Book of the Year award. Stephanie, the newest elected member of the International Bluegrass Music Association has been nominated for that organization's international award for "Bluegrass Print Media Person of the Year." The winner will be announced on October 27th at the annual awards dinner in Nashville.

HEATHER WOOD relates how NY Pinewoods members and friends came to the rescue at the Champlain Valley Festival that was held in August in Vermont. When TONY BARRAND, standing in for JOHN ROBERTS (who is recovering nicely from heart surgery) couldn't make it to the Saturday morning workshop, HARVEY BINDER saved the day by filling in with his celebrated "John and Tony Meet the Ramsbottoms" monologue. MICHAEL GIBNEY took his dad's place in the group, Poor Old Horse (with David Jones and Heather Wood).

Sending us a check?

Please be sure to make it out to our official corporate name: Folk Music Society of New York, Inc, or just FMSNY. The bank doesn’t like checks made out to Pinewoods. Thanks.
